

Some of the names and attributes of our God:

In more or less alphabetical order, and each with at least one reference from Scripture. The fourth word in the Bible is Elohim (“In the beginning, Elohim ...”) and doesn’t argue the case for the existence of God. Thus, the Bible begins with God, He simply is - without question. This list is not an exhaustive one, but, having originally started the list as “The names of our God,” then found many more, I felt obliged to rename this list as “Some of the names of our God,” as there may well be many more that I haven’t yet discovered. This list then, is simply of those which I have discovered up to the date at the bottom of the list, they are mostly Old Testament names, so I assume that there are more, of which I am not aware, in the New Testament. If you can point me in the direction of others not listed here, please feel free to let me know. Our contact details etc. are at the end of this list, followed by an index.

Where there are different meanings for the same Hebrew word, or different words for the same meaning, one must always look at the context. This is advisable anyway, in every case.

1. Abba (Romans 8:15) Meaning “Father” or “Daddy.”
What a privilege this, to call the Lord God of Isra’el, the creator of all things, Father, or, more intimately, Daddy!
2. Adon or Adonai (Genesis 15:2) Meaning “My Lord,” or “My Master,” the Headship Name. The word may be applied to God or to man, but in the latter case, the word starts with a lower case “a.” Adon is the singular form, Adonai being the plural form. The implication in the use of this word is the right to absolute obedience and the servant’s right to have clear direction in service. In many cases, Adonai may be substituted for “Elohim” or “Jehovah” in the compound names of Elohim or Jehovah below.
3. ADONAI (Frequent usage) Meaning “The Lord” or “The Master.”
4. ADONAI ‘Elyon (Psalm 7:17) Meaning “The Lord, the God most high” or “The Lord, the supreme God” or “The Lord, the uppermost God.”

7. Adonai Shamah (Ezekiel 48:35) Meaning “The Lord is There,” or “The Lord is ever-present.” This name signifies the abiding presence of the Lord with His people, hence it applies to both Isra’el and to believers. This is the same as Jehovah Shammah.
8. Adonai-Tzva’ot (Jeremiah 31:34) Meaning “Master (or Lord) of Hosts” or “Master (or Lord) of Armies.”

Eternity of Being. It also carries the implication that He is God over all things everlasting.

The first occurrence of this name is in this verse, where Almighty God appeared to Abraham at the age of 90 years old and told him to ‘reproduce’ himself, since El Shaddai is quite capable of enabling (or sufficient to enable) Abraham to do this!

The fact that the letter of Ya’acov was renamed by the translators of the King James (Authorised) Version really had nothing to do with the anti-Semitism rife at the time (and now!) - of course! Naturally, it is because the king’s name at the time was James. Almost only in the English language versions of the Bible is this change made, most other major language versions use the proper name of Ya’akov or Jacob.

43. Elohim (Genesis 1:1; 1:26) Meaning “God,” or “God, the Strong Creator.” Note that in the Hebrew language, any word ending in “-im” is a plural word. The meaning is - “Lord” or “ADONAI” literally, “He that is who He is.” From this follows the meaning “The Eternal I AM.” When Moses asked who he should say sent him, the Lord answered “I AM THAT I AM.” Thus God is “I AM (add whatever function or capability is appropriate for the moment).” See also Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh It can also be translated as “The self existent one.” Jehovah is the redemptive name of the deity, showing this particular relationship between God and His people – Isra’elite (Jews) and believers. Jehovah is also the base of the compound names of our God which follow.
